REED PAINTS SAPIRO AS AN EXPLOITER OF THE FARMERS

Ford's Attorney Delivers A Scathing Attack On Opponent

JUDGE RULING FAVORS

Effort Made to Have Opening
Remarks Ruled Out
Of Order

FEDERAL BUILDING, DETROIT, Mar. 18 (I.N.S.)—Hurdling a series of legal obstacles, Senator James A. Reed (D) of Missouri, today pictured Aaron Sapiro, so-called "wheat king," to the Ford-Sapiro libel jury as an exploiter of American farmers and wrecker of farm associations.

This scathing attack on Sapiro came only after Federal Judge Fred S. Raymond ruled that Reed's opening speech to the jury was in order. Counsel for Sapiro vigorously protested and noted an exception to the ruling to be used as the basis for an appeal to higher courts if the verdict ultimately goes to Ford.

ROTARY CLUB HOST TO BOYS' WEEK CHAIRMAN

Luncheon Tendered To Heads
Of the Co-operating Committees

INTERESTING SPEAKER

Bristol Rotary Club, last night, entertained the chairmen of the committees of the various organizations which co-operate in staging Boys' Week here. The affair was in the nature of a dinner which was served in the Elks' Home and this was followed by a very interesting talk on Boys' Week.

Promptly at 5:45 the Rotarians and their guests assembled and then adjourned to the dining hall of the Elks' Home where a delightful repast was served. Concluding with the meal adjournment was taken to the social session hall.

The speaker of the evening was Charles E. Bainbridge, physical director of Boys' Club of Germantown and a member of the Philadelphia Rotary Club. He took as his topic Boys' Week.

What Our Legislators Are Doing

Senator Buckman, member of the State Senate from this district introduced the following bill in the senate. It was referred to Committee on Public Roads and Highways:

Establishing as a State highway a certain section of public road in the county of Bucks

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That a certain section of public road known as the Street road beginning at Neshaminy in the County of Bucks at an intersection with State Highway Route Number One Hundred and Fifty-one and running thence to Eureka and intersecting with State Highway Route Number Three Hundred and Seventy-three shall be adopted by the Department of Highways as a State highway and shall hereafter be maintained repaired improved and reconstructed at the expense of the Commonwealth in the same manner as other State highways under the laws of the Commonwealth

Senator Buckman also introduced the following bill:

To amend section eight hundred and fifty of the act approved the fourteenth day of July one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (Pamphlet Laws eight hundred forty) entitled "An act concerning townships and revising amending and consolidating the law relating thereto" by providing that only roads and streets may be accepted by townships of the second class as part of the highway system thereof and requiring the consent of the court of quarter sessions before such acceptance

Section 1 Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in General Assembly met and it is hereby enacted by the authority of the same That section eight hundred and fifty of the act

Resolution

RESOLVED, That the Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, Department of Penna. American Legion, of Bristol, Penna., in regular meeting assembled, unanimously favors the increase in this Commonwealth's appropriation for the Mothers' Assistance Fund to $4,000,000 in order that all widowed mothers who may apply and who are qualified may be given financial assistance without undue delay, and be it further

RESOLVED, That eligibility regulations be made uniform throughout the Commonwealth and all unjust restrictions at present in force in many counties be forever rescinded, and be it further

RESOLVED, That a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to the representatives in the State Legislature from this district and to the local papers.

BOYS GIVEN A HEARING

DOYLESTOWN, Mar. 18.—Two of the three boys who confessed to breaking into twelve of twenty-three bungalows robbed in the Newport bungalow colony, in Bensalem township last Friday night, were before Judge William C. Ryan, Wednesday morning, in juvenile court.

Samuel Wilson, 13, Newport, and Francis Barnhart, 15, of the same place, admitted they entered the twelve bungalows with Albert Barnhart, aged 17, who will be given a hearing Monday morning.

The boys claim they stole nothing but forty cents, although articles said to be worth $800 are missing and considerable damage was done to the bungalows.

Samuel Wilson was sent home with his parents and warned by Judge Ryan to be a good boy in the future and to attend school regularly. He was told that if he got back into court again he would be sent to Glen Mills Reform School. Barnhart was committed to the House of Detention of the Bucks County Prison until the case of his brother is disposed of next week.

The boys were arrested by H. Lincoln Hughes, Bensalem township police officer, and Thomas Crawford, Bristol township officer. Judge Ryan directed that the parents of the Wilson boy pay the costs in the case. When presented it was found the police costs amounted to over $50 alone for "investigation." When this fact was made known to the Court, the prosecuting officer was informed that

NEW AND IMPORTANT SERVICES

—BY THE—

FARMERS NATIONAL BANK

(EDITORIAL)

WHILE the actual details are not yet at hand, it is not too early to say that the proposed broadening of its banking powers announced a few days ago by the Farmers National Bank is of important significance not only to the business interests of our immediate community, but to all persons within the wide territory served by this pioneer bank of Bucks County.

The announcement means a widening of the field of usefulness and service of the Farmers National, in order that, in the light of present-day needs and practices, it may to the fullest extent serve the public and continue to play its important part in contributing to the growth and development of the lower section of Bucks County.

Also, it may be stated now that in carrying out this project of greater banking and financial service, the Farmers National will be putting into effect plans which its officers and directors have been studying and perfecting for many months, but which only were made possible in their fullest scope by recent Federal legislation.

As set forth in the Courier of March 15th, the privileges extended to National Banks by the Federal Reserve Law, supplemented by the passage in the last days of the 69th Congress of what was known as the McFadden Bill, National Banks now possess additional powers which previously were enjoyed mainly by Trust Companies and State Banks.

It is in the full use and application of these additional powers and privileges that the Farmers National is about to widen its activities in a way which, while strictly consistent with its century-old reputation for sound practice, safety and security, will at the same time be of important effect throughout this section of the County as an aid both to its business activities and its home-building development.

The management has announced that extensive changes and rearrangements will be made in the interior of the Bank, and it is probable that, coincidental with the beginning of these physical alterations, extensions and improvements, a detailed outline will be given the public of the enlarged activities and increased services which the Farmers National proposes to offer in the financial field.

This much may be said now, however: That not only will the Farmers National Bank possess practically all of the fiduciary powers which heretofore have lodged more especially in those financial institutions that have operated strictly under State charter and outside of general Federal jurisdiction, but, equally important, and in some respects more so, it will take advantage of recent Federal legislation to procure the authority to invest in evidences of indebtedness secured by real estate and represented by mortgages or judgments.

With its large means, which are the result of its long and enviable record of wise banking and sound financial practice, this latter power will open to the Farmers National Bank of Bucks County the opportunity for increased and valuable service in the form of co-operation and assistance in the physical growth, improvements and development of the community, as well as in its business life.

In short, the management is taking the steps necessary to procure such additional powers and authority, in order that it may, to the fullest extent, continue the record it has achieved through more than a century of service to the community.

To these new and broader activities the Farmers National Bank will bring a record of more than a hundred years of successful banking. It will bring a reputation that is second to that of no financial institution in the United States. It will bring a combined experience and judgment that throughout its long and honorable career have stood steadfastly for safety and security and have been the bulwarks of its success and reputation. And it will bring a financial ability and capacity invaluable to its patrons and equal to any and every legitimate need.

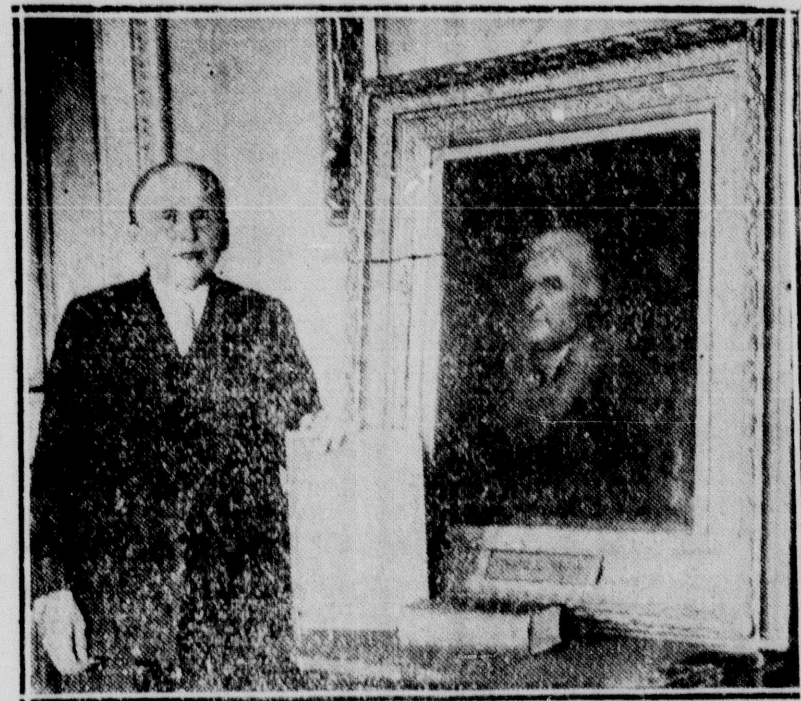

LATE NEWS

ROME, March 18.—Italy will probably send an observer to the tri-partite disarmament conference proposed by President Coolidge, according to a dispatch distributed today by the semi-official Radio Nazionale.

ERIE, Pa., March 18.—Just before the official inquest opened here today, Coroner Daniel Hanley declared that Virginia Gibney, chorus girl found dead in a local hotel early this morning, possibly died from stomach trouble.

SHANGHAI, March 18.—The war fortunes of Northern China are at a low ebb today and the Southern Nationalists appear on the verge of important victories.

Loves Golf; Dislikes Bolshevists; Hobbies of Secretary of State Kellogg

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Mar. 18.—Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg, has two hobbies—playing golf, which he does remarkably well despite his 70 years, and hating the Bolshevists, which he also does remarkably well.

It might be said of the Secretary of State that he has a cordial dislike for anything which by any stretch of imagination might be termed "radical." He is a convert to the school of ultra-conservatism, for his younger days as a federal District Attorney in Minnesota, he attained considerable prominence as a "trust-buster." As such he was commended by Theodore Roosevelt and the late Bob La Follette of Wisconsin.

Mr. Kellogg was, in fact, something of a "radical" himself by the standards of those days. But with prominence and wealth came conservatism.

Fought La Follette

It was Kellogg who, as a Senator from Minnesota, introduced the famous resolution of expulsion against La Follette during the war. That resolution was squelched by "Boss" Boies Penrose, who, despite the divergence of their political views, always had a warm affection and high regard for the Wisconsin insurgent.

Subsequently the "radicals" from Minnesota retired Secretary Kellogg from the Senate and elected in his stead a Farmer-Laborite, Hendrik Shipstead. This confirmed Mr. Kellogg's anti-radical complex.

The Minnesotans, however, "kicked him upstairs" for not long after he was appointed Ambassador to Great Britain, and then when Charles E. Hughes resigned he was called home to preside over the State Department.

Does Not Like Reds

Kellogg's administration of the State Department has been a reflection of his anti-radical views, and nervous mistrust of anything with a pinkish tinge. He had denied admittance to these shores to a number of foreign personages suspected of harboring political views not akin to his own. The most notable of these were Count Karolyi, the first president of the Republic of Hungary, and Countess Karolyi. He also denied to Mme. Kollontay, the Russian Ambassador to Mexico, permission to cross American territory enroute to her post.

More recently he has charged Mexico with being a Bolshevist government and Mexico City with being "The Moscow of the western hemisphere."

Outside of hating the Bolshevists Secretary Kellogg's chief diversion is golf. He swings a wicked nubbie despite his 70 years, and his average score is only a dozen strokes greater than his years.

PRESBYTERIAN CHOIR GUESTS OF BIBLE CLASS

Entertained at St. Patrick's Day Supper Last Night In Church Dining Hall

A DELIGHTFUL AFFAIR

The choir of the Presbyterian Church was most delightfully entertained at a St. Patrick's supper last night by the members of the Women's Bible Class of the Presbyterian Church, taught by Miss Elizabeth Crichton.

A very tempting menu was served which consisted of fruit cup, chicken patties, green peas, tomato salad, shamrock candy, stuffed dates, pistachio ice cream, cakes and coffee.

After the supper several members of the class entered the room dressed in quaint Irish costumes, and formed a semi-circle. Miss Annie Hay then recited an original Irish rhyme of welcome, then followed the "Irish Gossip Party" which involved "gossip" concerning each member of the choir and which was most amusing.

Mrs. Charles I. Bowen and Miss Grace Shaver then favored the gathering with solos. Mrs. Bowen's selection being "A Little Bit of Heaven" and Miss Shaver's selection "Where the River Shannon Flows." Both were very ably rendered.

Many Irish songs were sung by the entire gathering and several games played, one being a potato carving contest. A potato and knife was handed to each contestant for them to carve out whatever object he or she might choose, and a prize was awarded to the winner.

Miss Crichton then addressed the gathering on behalf of the Women's Bible Class, stating that it was indeed a pleasure to entertain the choir, and in this way show their appreciation.

SPORTSMEN VIEW EDUCATIONAL REELS

Norman P. Wood, of Board of Game Commissioners,
Gives Lecture

MEET IN THEATRE HERE

With much enthusiasm did the members of the Bristol Fish and Game Protective Association watch the numerous reels of motion pictures as they were run off at the Riverside Theatre, here, last evening. Exceptional interest was shown because of the nature of the films, all relating to the chief enjoyment of the sportsmen the country over.

A few reels showing wild animals and wild birds in their haunts were very pleasing. Mr. Norman M. Wood, of the Educational Service of the Board of Game Commissioners, lecturing as the pictures were being projected. The reels were all loaned by the State Board for the use of the local sport lovers.

Shown in action as they leaped the rocks and dams on their way upstream gave those present an idea of how this species of fish find the way to the spawning beds. It was shown how fishermen net the salmon, after which the eggs are taken and hatched. The small fish are then returned to the sea. It was brought out that after a salmon spawns, it dies.

Scenes of sea fishing, with tarpon leaping after being hooked, and other scenes of fishermen on the deep were flashed on the screen. Another reel was on the subject "How to Bait-Cast and Fly-Cast." This reel was donated by the Montague City Rod Company.

Howard I. James gave an interesting talk stating that the greatest thing about hunting and fishing is the anticipation of what one might get and of the enjoyment he would derive from his outing, rather than the game and fish he brought home.

John Leslie Kilcoyne, who is an expert surf-caster, gave a much-appreciated talk on salt water fishing. Mr. Kilcoyne said the best fish he ever had with a fish was when he landed a 110-pound blue shark from the surf.

The meeting which commenced at 8 o'clock, kept the men interested for a three-hour period. The president of the association, Thomas Scott, presided.

ITS APPEAL IS UNIVERSAL

Some more than others, but all to a degree, like to wander through stores. Man has been doing it so long it seems almost instinctive. Perhaps the explanation for the universal appeal of the store counters lies in an innate love of possession and of anticipation of possession. People are forever window-shopping, looking-around-the-store with all the breathless expectancy of children on Christmas eve. They want something which they hope sometime to find in store made to their own order and to their price, or they are just interested in the things man is creating for man.

Not less irresistible is the newspaper with its columns of advertising. In these columns are found the same wonders and coveted merchandise that are found on the store counters. Only the "catalog and counter" combined in the newspaper advertising pages offer some advantages peculiar to themselves.

Every day millions of people the world over peruse the newspaper advertisements to inform themselves on the progress of civilization, on new comforts made available to mankind, on the fashions and vogues of the day, on where to buy the best of what they want at the most advantageous price, and furthermore for the same reason that they read the front page, the feature sections, the financial page and the sports news—because they are interested.

There are few things in which men, women and children are more interested than what the stores are displaying on their counters and in their windows and cases and what the newspapers are exhibiting in picture and print in their advertising columns.

THAT'S WHAT COUNTS

In the list of what may be called the chief characteristics of our present era may be found the assertion that this is an age when "no-body has any time." On this point practically all the observers and critics of our social order are agreed.

They draw their proof for this assertion from the ever-increasing speed of our means of transportation. A half-hour reduction in the time it takes to go from Chicago to New York; a mile added to the record of the number per hour in airplane travel; a half-hour gained in a trans-Atlantic trip—these are events that our hurrying age greets with joy. We have no time to dally.

Thus runs the lament of the critics. But is it indeed a matter of such grave concern? True, there was a time when men had more leisure than they take to themselves today, but we have yet to learn that in those days men had a greater abundance either in social progress or human happiness than we have today.

We can't deny that we are in a hurry, but as compared to more leisurely periods in history it isn't to be denied that we get things done. And after all that's what counts.

Take pains with your work or you will get pains out of it.

From the picture "A Regular Scout" starring Fred Thomson.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Fred Blake, impersonating the "long-lost" son of the Sierra Monroes, to avenge his mother's death, is accepted by Mrs. Monroe, June, her daughter, and Buddy, who is a Boy Scout, as their relative. He finds his conscience bothering him, and leaves. Saving Buddy's life, he has to return, and when the Boy Scouts give him a medal for bravery he breaks down and confesses that he is hunted by the police. He is arrested.

CHAPTER XV

SILVER DOES HIS BIT

Bide Hanson jerked Fred Blake's arm from the holster, handcuffed his prisoner, and led him out of the court-room. As he walked out into the street he said to Fred: "Sorry, pardner. I hates tuh do it." Fred smiled wanly, and they began rapidly to walk up the street to the adobe jail. A chattering crowd followed at their heels, crowding the two silent men, curious, inquisitive. It had been Sunday's day for Sierra. Excitement galore! The whole town was buzzing with the news. Fred Monroe not Fred Monroe—but a criminal—wanted by the police—for murder—rumored that Mrs. Monroe had broken down—tears on June Monroe's face—maybe she loved him—they said.

Directly in the midst of the crowd looking behind the Sheriff and his prisoner trod a much bewilderer, but determined horse. Silver, left outside the court-room, now beheld his master and god being led in a very curious manner away. No sign. There was something wrong. Silver could feel it. Whereupon he pushed his huge, white nose through the crowd and strove to reach Fred, walking stiffly and unseeing along. A man irritably pushed his head away. Silver pushed back.

Just as he thought he had reached his master he saw Fred disappear ed along at a tremendous rate. June realized the utility of struggling, and gave Steve Burlingame little trouble.

As they tore past neither horseman noticed a Boy Scout rise from a thick clump of mesquite, gaze after them, and then leap on his sturdy mountain horse and give chase. The horse ran like a greyhound—a picked Scout mount, fleet and tireless. The fleeing horsemen took a trail leading up into the hills, and the Scout dashed along in their tracks. As he came to the intersection of the road where the trail branched off into the mountains, he leaped off his horse and quickly gathered three large rocks which he set directly pointing to the trail.

It was the universal Scout signal: "They've gone this way!" Then he dashed along the road, headed for Sierra.

He thundered into town, dropped off his horse, and shouted to the first group of Scouts he encountered: "Quick! Kidnappers! They just grabbed June Monroe an' went up the Horseshide road—I've marked the way!" The Scouts ran for their horses and were off in a cloud of dust. Buddy Monroe, bandages and all, leading the squad of fleet horsemen.

But Fred Blake, looking into the eyes of his horse Silver, had overheard the Scout's shouted warning. June! He must get out of here—quickly—let the law deal with him later. But to the rescue!

The door was locked. Eyes gleaming, Fred leaned out between the bars, patted Silver, and whispered: "Quick, Silver! The keys!" He pointed to the door. With a snort Silver wheeled. He dashed heavily round the corner, butted the man standing before the jail-door and knocking him unconscious. As the jailer fell his keys dropped to the ground. Silver snatched them up in his teeth and ran swiftly back to Fred. In a twinkling Fred had opened the door, dashed out, and leaped on pear into a small, iron-barred building, and the door shut tight behind him. Silver was puzzled, hurt, suspicious. Something was wrong, radically wrong. He tried to push through the door, but a burly man carrying a gun slapped him sharply and said: "Gon! Git away!" He dodged nervously to the side of the building and began to run in short circles near the barred window.

Yes—there he was! Silver's large, moist eyes fixed themselves on the downcast figure inside the barred room. He tapped on the pane of window-glass, protecting the bars, with his nose. Fred did not look up. What on earth was the matter? Had his beloved Fred forgotten him?

With difficulty picking up a large stone in his tender mouth, Silver trotted excitedly to the window, treated a few steps, and then dashed forward directly to the window. A violent toss of his head—a crash—and the stone had shattered the pane and fallen at Fred's feet. Fred looked up in surprise.

When June and her mother left the court-room they went directly to their automobile, and Chuck took the wheel, with Like sitting beside him. They talked in low tones. Neither Mrs. Monroe nor June said a word to each other during the ride. June's face was flushed, desperate; Mrs. Monroe stared straight ahead, unseeing. Once her lips moved, and she murmured, "Poor, poor boy!" But it was to herself.

Arrived at the ranch, Mrs. Monroe went directly to her room. June, passing to the living-room, thought she heard sounds coming from the little library beyond and paused, distracted, to investigate. She gasped as she saw two men bending over the wall-safe, extracting some papers and currency.

With a snarl, the men wheeled about, and June, horrified, recognized Steve Burlingame and Ed Powell. The husky, black-bearded Powell growled: "Quick! Get her an' come along—we gotta take her or she'll stir up the whole county!" He leaped out of the open window, the papers in his hand. Steve dashed for the terror-stricken, dumfounded girl, clapped his hand over her mouth, and dragged her outside, through the window. Powell was waiting with two horses, and before June knew what was happening she was being borne swiftly away in front of the panting Steve, the horse running like the wind. Nobody saw them leave. Chuck and Like had just retired to the bunk-house; the ranch-help were in town celebrating the holiday.

Out on the open road, they dashed.

Silver's back. Then he ran his horse at full tilt through the still crowded streets.

Bide Hanson with a start recognized him and started to draw his gun. He felt a slight, restraining pressure on his arm. Turning, he looked directly into the eyes of the tall, dark stranger.

"Git him go, Sheriff. I'm an officer myself—I know he's all right. You an' I have other work. We're following—but not him!"

He flashed his badge. Together, Bide Hanson and the detective ran for their horses.

CHAPTER XVI

THE KNIFE-THrust

There was just one thought in Fred Blake's mind as he sat hunched over Silver's empty back, streaking through Sierra's crowded streets and out into open country. He did not notice the amazing manner in which objects grew small, dwindled, and disappeared as he flew past; he did not realize the tremendous velocity at which his magnificent horse was hurtling along; his one thought, all his energies, every tensed muscle in his splendid body were called into play with the object of overtaking the desperate men who had kidnapped June Monroe and fled to the mountains with their precious burden.

Silver extended himself. Obdient to every twitch of his master's knee against his broad, flaring side, now he lengthened his stride, distended his nostrils, leaped forward with a truly amazing speed. His great muscles obeyed him; his huge, white body rose and fell tirelessly in a pace that would have killed the ordinary Western mount. Silver was not Silver; he was Fred Blake's friend.

He forged ahead, running like the wind.

Fred bent low in the saddle to lend as little resistance as possible to the wind. His eyes, hard, fiery, were glued on the road ahead, watching trees, bushes, boulders, swish by, watching the brown, swaying ribbon of the road literally eaten up by Silver's tremendous pace. A cloud of acid dust surrounded them, horse and rider; they resembled nothing in the world save a huge centaur—man and beast glued together in a magnificent exhibition of reckless, effortless horsemanship.

So rapidly was Silver forging ahead, so quickly were the road and the trees and small hills eaten up by his pace, that it seemed a moment since Fred had dashed wildly out of staring Sierra when Silver and his rider sighted the Boy Scout band speeding along toward the same goal.

Send in seed orders this week. Business is rushing.

Reseed the lawn on the last snowfall. You can see whether the seed is well distributed on the snow and it germinates excellently sown in this manner.

There is nothing finer for cutting than the improved mourning brides or scabiosas. The lavender, rose and whites have become popular but the old-fashioned velvety blacks are still the most striking of the lot.

New plants worth trying for the flower garden are the Chinese forget-me-not, cynoglossum amabile, and the new Sunshine asters.

There are several new squashes of small size excellent for the home garden now on the market. The old sweet potato or banana squash comes out in improved form. There are also pocket-sized Hubbards worth growing.

New Iceland poppies rivaling the Shirley keep coming to us each year. Sown early, these may be grown as annuals for fall flowers and then they will be ready to bloom bright and early again next spring.

Start snapdragons early in a cool room. Let them grow slowly in the seed boxes. They will make up in speedy growth outside from a stocky start indoors.

Jerusalem cherries for Christmas decorations are easily raised from seed. It is merely a pepper with round fruits. Start a packet this spring.

Order Golden Bantam corn early. The demand increases each season. Try some of its hybrids which take the yellow color and much of the quality into larger cobs.

Zinnias in their colossal and dahlia-flowered types offer some attractive colorings, selected so that they come very true from seed. The pinks, roses and salmons are particularly fine. The crimsons and scarlets have been standards of gorgeous beauty for several seasons.

Order balcony petunia seed for the window boxes early, also the improved Rosy Morn strains.

Stringless green-pod beans are superior and the yield extraordinary.

really stringless now. Get a good strain from a reliable firm.

There are several round early tomatoes among the new vegetables that look enticing.

Try some of the newer large-podded dwarf peas this year. Their quality is

"He turned, with a cry of alarm, to the airman sitting four feet behind him at the controls. The cry died in Quantrill's throat, he stared dumbly at the pilot, whose leather hood was thrown back. The face was the face of Robert Masterton, and the eyes that looked into Quantrill's were keen and inexorable as fate. What grim tragedy awaited?" Read the details of this amazing situation in "The Web of Fear," beginning in the next SUNDAY PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER

"THE WEB OF FEAR"

By John Goodwin

Occasionally there appears a mystery story that does not break down, or even falter, as the last page approaches. The Web of Fear is one of them. The opening of Mr. Goodwin's tale is intensely dramatic, and thereafter the interest increases steadily until the final, and eminently satisfactory, denouement is reached. An innocent man is convicted of selling his country's secrets to a foreign power, and is sentenced to prison for twelve years. Seemingly the brilliant career of Robert Masterton has rudely been cut short; but that prison sentence really marked the beginning of a new life for him. The story of how he walked forth from his cell a vindicated man, and how he took his vengeance upon the five men who had wronged him, is an enthralling one. He found himself opposed to one of the most unscrupulous groups of criminals that the world could boast, but Masterton's method of revenge was a masterpiece of originality and efficiency. One by one he met his enemies, and one by one they mysteriously vanished. If you wish to know what happened to them, read The Web of Fear. You will find in John Goodwin a writer of mystery tales well worth knowing.

NASH

Leads the World in Motor Car Value

NEW
Special Sedan
Special Six Chassis
$1485
f. o. b. factory

The Nation's New Vogue in Body Design
Styled by Nash

It is emphatically apparent today that Nash has created a new era in American enclosed body artistry with this arrestingly distinctive body design.

With its new symmetry of line, its classically beautiful French-type rear contour and French roof design, and its rich ensemble of costly car features, the new Special Sedan pictured above possesses magnetic appeal for those most keenly perceptive of motor car style and quality.

The steering wheel is of real walnut in fitting harmony with the handsome walnut finish of the inside window mouldings, door panels, the instrument board and the crowned panel which is above the instrument board. The gray toned upholstery is genuine Chase Velmo Mohair Velvet, deeply tufted. And Nash powers it with a 7-bearing motor—the world's smoothest type.

So that in transcendent power—evenness and quietness, in lightning-fast "pick-up," and in easeful roadability on the straightaway or climbing, together with a world of speed, it stands out as the most notable car of its field.

As standard equipment there are Gabriel Snubbers at front; 4-wheel brakes, of special Nash design, with the front wheel brakes completely enclosed for safety's sake; and 5 disc wheels.

A larger Special Sedan on the Advanced Six Chassis, reflecting the same unsurpassed quality throughout, is offered at $1695 f. o. b. factory.

How Quickly
We Are Learning
Real Values!

If shoes were a new "invention" and half the people in the United States were still wearing their "first pair," we could hardly be expected to judge shoe values with great wisdom. More than half of us who now own cars did not own cars 4 years ago. We are really learning car values with surprising quickness.

A lot of unwise buying yet, of course—but it's encouraging when a man writes in, "I bought a Ford—the yearly saving is paying for my comfortable home."

The guests then departed for their homes, after spending a most enjoyable evening.

NEW YORK YANKEES EXTREMELY DECOROUS

By Davis J. Walsh
1. N. S. Sports Editor
ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Mar. 18.—After several days of personal observation I am able to report today that the ball club known as the New York Yankees has turned out to be an extremely decorous gentleman. He has an injured left leg as a result of turning his ankle in Orlando some days ago but that is merely a temporary condition while it may be that his reformation is permanent.

"As Ruth goes, so go the Yankees," has been the axiom of the outfit, these several years, and therefore, it is interesting to relate that Ruth is going to bed nightly at eleven o'clock. They closed up the dog track on him last week, thereby denying him his only nocturnal diversion, but the great man seems to have accepted the blow with marked fortitude. He doesn't even hang around the drug store anymore.

This fact automatically makes the Yankees an exemplary team since Ruth is the ball club. With him, it is an inevitable contender, certain to run one-two-three. Without him it would be destined for the second division.

It is a club that must get its results via an orgy of hitting and Ruth, of course, is the key-man. Its pitchers are a bit elderly, its infield is a first class sieve, but Ruth, Meusel, Combs, Gehrig, Paschal and Lazzeri will drive in a lot of runs and the common impression is that they intend to count runs again this year.

Having won a pennant in this uncooth manner, it is plausible to expect that the Yankees either will attempt to be cooth or that they will make any radical changes in their personnel; yet I got the impression from Miller Huggins today that he is considering several. One of them, it seems, was made possible by the ward deal with the Chicago White Sox, and if it carried out, so also will be Mark Koenig, the five-thumbed shortstop.

Koenig made several accomplished drop kicks against the Reds at Orlando last week and it now is feared that he is the kind of man who may drop ten in a row and then suffer a bad slump. It has been intimated rather strongly in the Yankee camp that Ray Morehart, the pride and joy of Terrill, Texas, may do himself a lot of good here. He is being touted as the club's regular second baseman with Lazzeri being moved over to shortstop and Koenig being moved over at will as the exigencies of a crowded bench develop.

It may be even more crowded this year, for it seems possible that Johnny Grabowski, another ex-Chicago employee, will catch quite a few ball games this year, thereby depriving Pat Collins of his free-born right of hitting a spectator in the centerfield bleacher with his throw to second base. Grabowski, by way of contrast, has uncovered one of the finest throwing arms in baseball while here. Bengough, of course, figures to be the club's first catcher.

Otherwise, the Yanks will be the same old ball club, a little slow, a little dumb in spots but more than a little inclined to hit the next ball pitched for a round trip to the old homestead. Its offensive is what will keep the team in the race all the way but it may be that its defense, or lack thereof, is what will keep it from winning another pennant.

The pitchers are another source of uncertainty, the regular staff of Pennock, Ruether, Shocker, Shawkey and Hoyt being just a bit too rheumatic for its own good. Pennock, a hold out to date, still is a good pitcher; Ruether figures to have another average year, but Hoyt only is as good as he cares to be and the others frankly have seen the procession move on ahead.

However, it is possible that Wilcy Moore, up from Hollis, Okla., via Greenville, N. C., may redeem the situation and George Pipgras, back again from St. Paul, is another possibility in this direction. Moore was bought over the telephone because he had won thirty ball games. He looks like a good pitcher. Pipgras is just about due, if he ever is going anywhere except back while Roy Chesterfield, of Brazil, Ind., has better than an even chance of remaining with the outfit. Then, of course, there is Walter Beall, who may get around to the matter of pitching to the batter instead of the first baseman. However, Henry Johnson has taken Beall's place as the annual spring hope in the camp.

The select few of the younger generation who figure to stick are not pitchers, as a matter of fact. One of them is Elias Funk, from Oklahoma City, who has simply astounded the natives with his natty fielding in centerfield. Elias may go out again, since the Yanks have a superfluity of outfielders, but he will be back. George Davis, the Bridgeport, Conn., specimen, has made six hits in his last seven times at bat.

One Julian Wera, of Winona, Minn., has called forth some favorable comment on his fielding but with Dugan, Koenig, Lazzeri, Morehart, Gazella and Spencer Adams on or about the premises, any rising young man's style is certain to be cramped. Ed Phillips, up from St. Paul, may make the rifle as third string catcher but otherwise this isn't the place where youth will be served.

Offer Ten Prizes To H. S. Students For This Term

qualified to vote shall be as follows: Each member of the senior class shall vote for one person, the one receiving the highest number of votes shall receive the vote of the class, counting as one vote. Each teacher conducting classes for seniors shall have one vote. The superintendent of the school shall have one vote. The student receiving the highest number of votes shall receive the prize.

9. A member of the Fathers' Association offers a prize of $10 to that girl of the senior class who shall be voted the most useful girl to the high school during her four years' course; scholarship, conduct and time devoted to extra curricular activities to be the determining factors. The principal of the high school, the senior advisors and the senior class to be the judges. Each to have one vote (five votes in all). Seniors to have two votes.

10. A member of the Fathers' Association offers a prize of $5 to the student of the Senior High School who shall be deemed the most proficient in his work in the commercial department. Award to be made by the teachers of this department.

The Fathers' Association was organized here over two years ago, and has manifested a deep concern in all matters pertaining to the betterment of the public school system, and all that redounds to the good of the students. The present president is John H. Hardy.

such a charge was illegal and would not be allowed.

Young Wilson told the Court that the boys planned last Friday to break into the bungalows.

"We did it by forcing windows open last Friday night about 7:30," said young Wilson. "We had a candle for a light. We jimmied three windows and found the rest of the places open. We didn't steal the rifles and clothing spoken of. Albert Barnhart told us that maybe we would be caught and maybe not. We all agreed to enter the houses. We just wanted to see what was inside."

"We didn't think we would get caught," testified Francis Barnhart. "We only wanted to see what was inside and did not want to steal anything."
